The Royal Academy of Arts presents a landmark exhibition bringing together for the first time the work of acclaimed British artist Tracey Emin RA (b.1963) and the Norwegian Expressionist Edvard Munch (1863-1944), two internationally renowned artists born 100 years apart. Long fascinated and inspired by Edvard Munch's work, Tracey Emin has chosen a selection of his masterpieces to accompany her own works.

The bank for a changing world

In May 2021, the Royal Academy of Arts will present Michael Armitage: Paradise Edict. Born in Kenya in 1984, Michael Armitage graduated from the RA Schools in 2010 and now works between Nairobi and London. In his paintings, Armitage reflects on his experiences in Kenya and on current events, while drawing on contemporary East African art and European art history. Bridging artistic traditions, he looks towards the work of Jak Katarikawe, Meek Gichugu and Chelenge van Rampelberg as well as Titian, Francisco de Goya and Paul Gauguin. In his rich and multi-layered narrative paintings, Armitage questions social norms, religious ideology, politics and cultural clichés. The exhibition will include 15 of the artist's recent large-scale works, alongside a selection of around 35 works by East African artists chosen by Armitage.

Exhibition organised by Haus der Kunst, Munich, in collaboration with the Royal Academy of Arts, London.

David Hockney: The Arrival of Spring, Normandy, 2020 will comprise a new body of work created by David Hockney RA during a period of intense activity at his home in Normandy, charting the unfolding and progression of spring. The period in which these works were made coincided with the beginning of the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, when Hockney, along with the rest of Europe and much of the world, was in a state of lockdown. Faced with an unprecedented and disconcerting period, Hockney's focus on the emergence of spring instead celebrates the natural world and urges people, as he does himself in one of his frequently used phrases, to 'love life'. This will be the first time the works will be exhibited, opening exactly a year after the works were made.

Due to the revised exhibition scheduling, this exhibition will be shown in the Main Galleries from 23 May until 1 August, and then reinstalled in The Gabrielle Jungels-Winkler Galleries from 11 August until 26 September. The exhibition will include the same works in both locations.

Exhibition organised by the Royal Academy of Arts, London in collaboration with the BOZAR, Brussels.

Late Constable

The Gabrielle Jungels-Winkler Galleries

30 October 2021 – 13 February 2022

In October 2021, the Royal Academy will present an exhibition on the late work of John Constable (1776-1837). The exhibition's point of departure is the last of Constable's celebrated six-foot Suffolk canal scenes, The Leaping Horse, one of the highlights of the RA's collection, first exhibited in 1825. It is in this painting that Constable first departs from the notion of topographical accuracy which had been a hallmark of his work until that date. Distinguished by its rich technical vocabulary, the artist's late work, though often conservative in subject matter, becomes increasingly expressive in style. The exhibition will explore Constable's late career, from 1825 until his unexpected death in 1837, through his paintings and oil sketches as well as watercolours, drawings and prints. It will be arranged in chronological order exploring the extensive cross-fertilisation of his ideas between different media.
